My Good Deeds

(Presentation on your Good Deed)

Do people like helping others

- People like helping others because it brings them joy.
- It brightens their day in a way that the alternatives can't.
- Have you ever seen someone go through something brutal and horrible, only to end up helping others, rather than resenting them?
- Most of the people you see helping others fall into the above category. At least, the ones that survived the ordeal.
- You see, they become the help that they wish they had. They see you as an extension of themselves or someone they knew - someone that knows what it's like, or can empathize...if not with the precise situation you're in, then at least with the place you're at emotionally, physically, or mentally.
- By helping you, they're helping themselves, all over again - each time.
- Of course, there are those that may be doing it with ill intentions, out of compulsion, or because they feel 'why not', but that depends on the individual, not the nature of the human race as a whole.
